

It has come to my attention that you are considering a bill to limit the programming permitted on satellite radio, specifically the local weather and traffic channels for various cities across the nation. I am a truck driver, and as a professional driver, I find the services that I receive from my XM radio (satellite) very valuable. My job would be much more difficult without this programming. I find it very useful for checking weather and traffic prior to entering a city when I am as much as several hundred miles away. Considering that I am paying for this service, and the content can in no way be considered offensive, I do not believe government has any reason to regulate or limit this service.

Thank you for accepting my comments.

Sincerely,
Ronald L. Weaver
